11 "Something Blue" Makeup Ideas for Your Big Day

By Bryce Gruber of Martha Stewart Weddings

Adding a little "something blue" to your wedding day is tradition, but that doesn't always mean a blue sash, garter belt, or piece of jewelry with a blue stone. The tradition actually stems from an Old English rhyming poem stating, "Something olde, Something new, Something borrowed, Something blue, A sixpence in your shoe" to outline the various items an English bride would keep on her body on her wedding day. It's just so much easier and more modern to incorporate something blue into your flawless makeup routine though, whether it be a chic navy eyeliner, powder blue nail polish, or even the softest blue shimmer for the crease of your eyelids. Your dash of blue doesn't need to be an electric pop of anything bold or bright (although it easily could be), because incorporating blue into your beauty game can be elegant, understated, and just enough to play up all the most romantic cues of your hair, dress, and loving guests.

VOTRE VU LE JOLI CRAYO SOFT EYE LINER IN MARINE

This waterproof liner is a French classic, perfect for the croissants-and-espresso type bride who wants a reliably budge-proof blue. The hue itself is a somewhat unique hybrid of a very deep teal and navy blue, making it a perfect accent for deep, dark eyes or even paler green, yellow, or blue-toned lookers. The two-sided pencil offers a crayon at one end and a smudger at the other, so you can even blend your way to the perfect beach-worthy shadow.
